of Mr. Kernochan, the President of the bank. tells the whole tale.

Young Lane, it seems, concocted a clumsy story as to his being agent of a firm in New Jersey and commissioned to make collections Without taking the trouble to inquire whether there was a wally such a firm in exist. ence-for if they had the fraud would have been detected at the first step_... bey allow their clerk to open an account with them in his own name, though professedly on behalf of his imaginary firm, which was represented by the ini-Hals A. B. D. From time to time, commencing in 1857 and running on down to the date of his arrest, he himself recorded in the register books entries of pretended notes for sums ranging from five to nine hundred dollars, drawn by any person in creation upon any other person. to be paid either at Philadelphia or at Boston, and to be credited to himself, W. J. Lane, Jr., who was probably the only real flesh and blood individual in the financial transaction. The record in the books would further show that these imaginary notes were forwarded for collection the Bank of Philadelphia or to the Merchants' Bank at Boston; and on the strength of these entries young Mr. Lane could, and did, get checks from the cashier of the Fulton Bank to any amount he might demand.

The first question that will suggest itself on This statement of facts to any intelligent mind, not having a knowledge of the loose management of our banks, is, how it was that the Fulton Bank did not look for vouchers or returns from the Philadelphia and Boston banks for these pretended notes; and how it was that no weekly, monthly, quarterly or half yearly balances of accounts passed between them Every business man who sends by mail to a correspondent in a distant city any money or valuable security naturally looks for an acknowledgment of its receipt. Do not our banks practise such a common and necessary rule? It seems not: at least as far as the Fulton Bank is concerned. Here were a dozen of notes enter ed as being forwarded to the Bank of Philadelphia and the Merchants' Bank at Boston, and it seems to have been the business of no person in the Fulton Bank to look for their acknow ledgment, or to make inquiries whether or not they were received. If this neglect be customary, then it is no wonder that robbing the mails is such a common offence.

The developments made in this case would possibly apply quite as well to nearly every other bank in New York. The management of the Fulton is probably no more loose than that of all the rest. Men are often made presidents and directors, not because they possess financial ability or a thorough knowledge of accounts but because they own a certain number of shares in the bank, and have some object of their own to accomplish. They are purse-proud in proportion as they are stupid and ignorant, and think it beneath them to recognise or be familiar with the tellers and clerks. These latter, left to themselves, and having a thorough contempt for those moneyed parvenus who affect such airs, soon find out how they can carry on, without much fear of detection, a system of peculation by false entries, and so they soon present the very curious spectacle of men, on salaries ranging from one to three thousand dollars a year, living in marble or brown stone houses, driving fast teams, keeping fast women, frequenting gambling houses, and living in a style requiring an outlay of from ten to twenty thousand dollars a year. As in the case of Lane, the sole reason why they do not keep yachts is because they have not time enough for that style of amusement. The directors are the last persons to have their eyes opened to the anomaly. It is only when some accident occurs to bring the fraud to light that they realize how befooled they have been.

There are few banks in New York and few commercial houses that have not had some experience in this way. But, for every case that comes before the police courts and gets into the papers, a score of cases are quietly arranged within doors and all publicity of them suppressed. It is in this way that the public who are stockholders in banks, or have moneys deposited in them, are often victimized. But there is no remedy for the evil so long as the management of our banks is characterized by the gross negligence that has been brought home to the Fulton Bank by the developements in the case of young Lane. It is well, however, to bring the matter fully before the public.

Brooklyn City News. BLESSING AND RAISING A CROSS.—During the past week th German Roman Catholic missionaries have been tarrying in the village of New Brooklyn (Ninth ward), and holding forth daily in the little church in that neighborhood. They had with them a large variety of crucilixes and other Catholic emblems, which were cagerly purchased by persons who came to hear them. Their destination is the Far West, and these emblems are sold to defray their ex-Cathqite emblems, which were eagerly purchased by persons who came to hear them. Their destination is the Far West, and these emblems are sold to defray their expenses and to aid in the establishment of missions. Yesterday being the last day of their stay, was made the occasion for the elevation of a large cross, near the southeast corner of the church, the building being too small to support so great a weight. The cross is about two fuel in height and breadth and nearly of the same thickness. It is secured to a piece of timber of about forty feet in length, and is intended as a token of the visit of the missionaries and of the labors in which they are engaged. After blessing the cross it was raised to its position and firmly secured, when a sermon was preached from a platform erected alongside of the church. It now stands there, one of the most prominent objects in the vicinity. The coremony was witnessed by some five thousand persons, many of whom had come from a considerable distance. Collections were taken up during the services, and altogether, with the sale of mementoes, a large sum must have been realized. The missionaries will start for the scene of their future labors to-day.

OUR SPECIAL WASHINGTON DESPATCH.

Washington, Sept. 25, 1859. Letters from those who have seen and accompani Judge Douglas during his latest migrations represent him as more discouraged with regard to Presidential prospects than he has been at any time during the last two years. His own private embarrassments weigh upon him heavily. The answer of Judge Black to his copyright manifesto also puzzles him; but he is still more annoyed by the report that Hon. Robert J. Walker is preparing an elaborate his-torical refutation of his misstatements with respect to the

is not as serious as was at aret preceded. It grew manny out of alleged attempts on the part of local authorities in the Northern Pacific to restrain American traders and whalers within the limits imposed by Nicholas I. previous to the annexation of California. You will receive full details concerning the matter within a few days. The pre-sent government of Russia will offer no impediments, it is confidently trusted, to free trade on the part of American vessels with the growing population on the banks of the moor river. Hon. John Cochrane has been in Washington for son days, partly in reference to the contracting of publi-stores in New York, against which he had previously prostores in New York, against which he had previously pre-tested in writing both to the Secretary of the Treasury and to the President. He strenuously demands that the contracts shall be rescinded, as calculated to do injury to the laboring classes. If Mr. Cobb declines acceding to his wishes he declares that he will move that to his wishes he deciares that he had been the manner in which they were entered into be fully investigated by a Committee of the House of Representatives. The slanderous report that of Representatives. The standards of the matter has Mr. Cochrane was pecuniarily interested in the matter has a rouged his indigna perhaps, more than anything else, aroused his indigna-tion against an association with which he has never had any sympathy. His own private and public records for inmaining so. Nevertheless, the contract system is by no means so be in itself as the Tammany cabal against it have asserted The fable that Cochrane was personally concerned in the government engagement with Messrs. Craig, McIntyre and Bixby, sprang out of the jealousies of some of the very rowdies who have recently been conspicuous at Syracuse in disturbing the regular organization of the Democratic State Convention. They were fully aware, at the time they made them, of the falsehood of their representations but hoped by a bold stroke to transfer to their own hand the power which the administration had more prudently vested. The consequence has been, however, the exact opposite of what these Tammany vagabonds anticipated, and Mr. Cobb is more decided than ever in favor of the cheme, as inseparable from his other measures in behalf of financial reform.

dessrs. Cochrane and others, Mr. Cobb commissioned his most confidential agent, the Hon. John B. Guthrie, ex-Mayor of Pittsburg, to open investigations on the spot and to report to him immediately. The contract was have been rescinded at once had the facts justified such an extreme measure. Mr. Guthrie arrived in New York last Wednesday evening, and still remains in your city but, up to this morning, no letters have been receive from him condemnatory of the new mode of conducting business. It would appear, on the contrary, that while the merchants and importers are better satisfied than the ever have been before, the entire hubbub of opposition Tammany. Up to the present time, moreover, no reductions have been made in expenditure, although a decrease of force will shortly be indispensable, and the outcry of the demagogic faction is only anticipatory of a capita which they hope to be able to make out of future changes

Mr. Guthrie reports that on every previous visit he has ever made to New York he has been literally waylaid with complaints by merchants; but that this time, after the class most interested in the matter, he has been una ble to find one, so ably and punctually is the business of the public stores now conducted. It is manifest, there fore, that the obloquy which a contemptible faction have endeavored to cast upon the administration in the public store affair, is of a piece with their Douglas intrigues at Syracuse and with the calumnies by which they sought to crush private individuals. Mr. Cobb is, therefore, de-termined to give the new system a fair and impartial trial. Its workings will be closely and continually scrutinged by the government agents, and while no possible amoun of Tammany opposition will be allowed to affect it on the me hand, every just complaint will be listened to and eve ry abuse will be promptly remedied. Nearly two hundred thousand dollars a year will be saved to the national treasury by the various reforms which have been recent

THE GENERAL NEWSPAPER DESPATCH.

Washington, Sept. 25, 1889.
Colonel Rankin, Register of the Land Office at Olympia Washington Territory, has arrived here from the island of San Juan. He reports that if the intention of Governor Douglas had been carried out, there would have been collision between the British and American forces; as the Satellite and Plumper had orders from him to fire; but Admiral Bayne opportunely arrived and superseded him in the command of the English ships-of-war, five in number. The original misunderstanding was with the Hud-son's Bay Company, the interests of which were represented by Douglas The island of San Juan had been in the occupancy of the Americans for at least eighteen months, nobody seeming to question their rights, and had been for a longer period considered and treated in all respects as belo Washington Territory. It was not until General Harney applied to, and was informed by Boundary Commissioner Campbell that our title to the island was clear and certain, that he despatched troops thither at the earnest request of the residents, who claimed protection from British ag gression, and especially from the predatory incursions of the northern Indians, who had even taken and held possession of a lighthouse for three days, and against whom private expeditions had repeatedly been sent to chastise them. Colonel Rankin says the people of Washington and the Pacific States are unanin ion of the island, and such is their enthusiasm, that if the United States troops should be directed to vacate it, pri-vate parties in formidable numbers would immediately occupy that important position and not surrender it with-out a severe struggle. But it is not supposed in this city that our troops will be withdrawn, as this would be con sidered as an admission that our title is clearly disputable It may not be generally known that our governmen has recently confirmed a bluff of land for a military reser

The continuous rain of last week seriously affected the receipts of the theatres, and the Opera was an especia erer. During the week Madame Cortesi has sung it "Traviata" and the "Trovatore," two rôles which she invests with much dramatic intensity. Madame Gassier has sung the "Puritani." The performance was not up to her usual standard of excellence, so far as the singing of the first act goes. In the second she was much four hours' performance was given to a tremendous crino line convention. The season is to be extended to the line convention. The sesson is to be extended to the end of this week. To night the "Trovatore" is to be given, with Madame Cortesi. Police Intelligence.

Schnocks, alias Snooks, who escaped from officer Evans on Friday, while on his way from the Tombs to the Court of General Sessions, to be tried on three indictments fo or teneral Sessions, to be tried on three indictments for passing counterfeit money, was recaptured last evening by detective officer Fitzmaurice, of the Second precinct. Officer Fitzmaurice was walking in Sixth street, near Third avenue, about five o'clock in the afternoon, when he met a man whom he knew to be a friend of Snooks. He followed the man around the city about two hours, and finally, at the corner of Eighth street and First avenue, he met with the fugitive, evidently by previous appointment. After passing a few words, the pair started down Eighth street, the officer went up and arrested Snooks, who immediately snowed fight. Fitzmaurice, being hardly u match for the two, drew his revolver and fired. Snooks immediately exclaimed that he was shot, and called upon his companion for assistance. His friend made a motion to interfere, but the officer presented his revolver and the fellow suddenly changed his mind. Fitzmaurice then, supposing that his prisoner was wounded, took him to a druggist's at the corner of Eighth street and St. Mark's place, but as soon as they had entered the door Snooks again cliniched the officer, and a desperate struggle ensued for the possession of the pistol. At length a policeman arrived, and Snooks was taken to the Seventeenth ward station house, handcuffed, and then removed to the Second precinct, where he was safely ledged for the night. He is a well known rascal, having done the Statestivice at Sing Sing for a burglary, and is sald to be wonderfully expert at altering bank bills. passing counterfeit money, was recaptured last evening

THE BROADWAY SHOOTING CASE.-James Wilson, the of Broadway and Canal streets, was identified at the New York Hospital yesterday as an expert burglar named Casey, who recently served out a term in the State prison at Sing Sing. The discovery was made by detective Slowey, who visited the bedside of the wounded man and positively identified him as a well known thief and burglar, and a fighting man to-boot. About a week ago Wilson alias Casey was arrested by officers Eustace and Farley on suspicion of liaving been implicated in a burglary in Broadway, opposite the St. Nicholas Hotel, but the evidence against him was insufficient and he was discharged. The condition of the patient remains unchanged. He is able to talk freely, and says he does not suffer much pain. The doctor is of opinion that the wound will prove fatal although no fears are entertained of immediate death. The patient may live a week or a fortnight, but he need not expect to survive much longer. Casey is a stout built fellow, of rather repulsive appearance, and has all the air of a rowdy thief.

W. Biggs was last evening brought to this city in custod; being an alleged fugitive from Augusta, Ga., where he is wanted to answer the charge of assault upon one Eleaza wanted to answer the charge of assault upon one Eleazar Parish, by shooting him in the arm, in January last. It seems that Parish was at that time charged by Biggs' wife with insuling her at the dinner table of the hotel where they were stopping, when Biggs, learning of the fact, immediately drew a revolver and fired at Parish, wounding him in the left arm. He was at once arrested and held to ball in the sum of $1,000, and shortly after fled. His bondsman, learning that he was in Froderickton, British Provinces, despatched the above officers after him; but they were unable to get on his track until their return, when he was found in Boston, and at once brought on to this city. He will be taken back to Augusta this afternoon.

occupants of the tenement house No. 199 East Twelfth street, became involved in a quarrel on Saturday night, when McGrann, it is alleged, drew a knife and stabbed his antagonist in the breast, inflicting a severe, though not fatal wound. The assailant escaped before the police came up, and has not been heard of since. Burns was conveyed to Bellevue Bospital for medical attendance. CHARGE OF BURGLARY .- A lad named William McSorley was brought before Justice Quackenbush on a charge of having burglariously entered the premises of George W. Schaffer, foot of Gansewoort street, and stealing therefrom about $10 worth of rope. Committed for trial in default of $1,000 bail.

Grand Largery.—Charles Ober, a sailor, was arrested for stealing a silver watch and other property, valued at 880, belonging to William Hershel, of No James slip. The prisoner admitted his guilt, and on being taken before Justice Osborne was committed for trial.
